

Toy Story 3. Barbie Meets Ken Scene

In Theaters: June 18th, 2010

April 20, 2010 - 13:10

Andy, now nearly 18 years old, is just days away from heading off to college, and his toys, including Woody and Buzz Lightyear, are worried about their uncertain future.

Andy plans to keep Woody and put the others in the attic, but his mother accidentally throws them away. Opening the trash bag they're in, the toys think that Andy tries to throw them away. Jessie thinks the toys should take charge of their own destiny and convinces them to stow away in a box of other toys headed for donation to Sunnyside Daycare. Woody, trying to save the toys from being thrown away, realizes they're in the donation box. Woody tries to rescue them but before he can leave Andy's mom puts him in the box and closes the back door.

When the toys arrive at Sunnyside they meet many new faces such as a pink strawberry-scented teddy bear called Lotso, who is the leader of the Sunnyside toys and a smooth-talking Ken doll, who falls head over heels for Molly's Barbie doll.

```
div.overlay { width:1040px; height:644px; } #imgplay { margin:88px 0px 0px 190px; } #player { background:no-repeat url('/videos/news/2010/april/meetken.jpg') top center; } #splash, #player, #player embed, #player object { width:560px; height:340px; }
```

The toys are keen on starting a new life at the daycare, except for Woody. Woody tries to escape but ends up being taken home by a little girl named Bonnie who takes him to meet her own toys; including Trixie the Triceratops, and the thespian hedgehog Mr. Pricklepants.

It isn't long before the other toys discover that Andy has noticed their disappearance and is actively searching for them. To make matters worse, they also learn that some of their new friends aren't as friendly as they thought. When Woody returns to the toys they then come up with a plan to return to Andy's family, but Buzz is damaged during an escape attempt. The toys try to reset Buzz, only to make him revert to a delusional Spanish version of his old self, much to the other toys' discomfort and Jessie's amazement.

The toys now must all work together to get Woody home in time before Andy leaves for college.

More Information at www.pixar.com. Image and Video Courtesy of Pixar Animation Studios. Video Encoding: 3Dup.com